Your Fertile Years - Joyce Harper 2021-04-29

'Essential reading' Professor Kypros Nicolaides 'Fills an important gap in understanding' Professor Robert Winston How well do you really know your body? How easy do you think it will be for you to get pregnant - or NOT to get pregnant? You've probably never really been educated about your reproductive years - perhaps you learnt everything you know from friends, or from the media, or online. You might be ready for a baby now; or, like so many other women, you might want to delay the birth of your first child while you establish your career. Perhaps you're thinking about freezing your eggs. Professor Joyce Harper is an internationally recognized expert on female fertility and fertility education, and in 12 chapters she covers the full scope of your reproductive years, from your first period to menopausal symptoms. Her straightforward, scientifically based advice will give you all the information you need to make informed decisions about your reproductive choices. Only when you really understand your menstrual cycle works can you optimise your lifestyle to get pregnant successfully - while being properly aware of how and when your fertility will decline. Your Fertile Years answers all your questions about things like egg freezing and IVF, and debunks not only the myths surrounding fertility treatment, but also the misinformation and scare stories that surround conception and pregnancy, including the bottom line on supplements, diet and holistic therapies. A shining beacon in the murky fertility landscape, this book will accompany you through your fertile years, giving you the guidance you need to make decisions that work for you, your family, your career and your body.

Contraceptive Methods Women Have Ever Used: United States, 1982-2010 - Kimberly Daniels 2013

Missed Conceptions - Karen Stollznow 2023-04-25

Infertility is one of the most painful and painfully common of human experiences. One in six couples will experience fertility challenges when they attempt to get pregnant, and while more and more people have spoken openly about infertility in recent years, the experience can still be incredibly isolating. But none of us is alone in our struggles. In fact, infertility is a universal part of the human experience that is mentioned in the earliest human writings. Across cultures and throughout time, the experiences of people who have faced fertility problems are widely discussed in early manuscripts, medical treatises, diaries, novels, poetry, plays, and song. After her own decade-long struggle to conceive, linguist and historian Karen Stollznow journeyed through history--from ancient civilizations and religions, to early-modern folklore, to current-day popular culture and modern medical practice--to try to make sense of what we mean by infertility and what infertility means for us. In Missed Conceptions, she shines a light on attitudes and beliefs about infertility, tests urban legends and old wives' tales, explores folk medicine and alternative therapies, and delves into modern science, separating fact from fiction along the way. Blending personal narrative, historical research, and pop culture, Stollznow gives voice to a reality that has long been spoken about in hushed tones. For anyone who is trying (and failing) to conceive, who will do just about anything to achieve what has been mistakenly called "the most natural thing in the world," this book is a welcome and hopeful companion.

This is a story about what can happen to a girl when she starts her period. People do not need to be able to read in order to understand the story. In the playground, other girls giggle and point at the blood stains. Susan doesn't know why they are laughing at her. A teacher notices what is happening and calls Susan aside to explain what menstruation is, and how she should look after herself. Susan's mother provides further reassurance on her return home from school. She shows Susan how to keep herself clean and comfortable. Susan has become a woman, and her mother takes her shopping to celebrate.

I Will Get Pregnant this Cycle. - Gabriela Munoz 2022-02-23

After a couple of losses, it took years and surgeries to get pregnant again and to have children. However, to get there, I needed to educate myself about pregnancy, female and male reproductive health. I read dozens of books, and I learned what I had to do to have children. One day, a friend ask me to help her, because after years of trying she could not get pregnant. After three months of working with what I learned, she got pregnant and has now 3 children. Her story reached other women she knew, and they started to come to me to help them as well. From there, it grew into a couple of hundred women that I helped and got pregnant with the help I was able to give them. Since most women want to know mostly the same things. I created this book to help you out there by addressing some of the questions. Also, because anxiety, worry, and stress are too often part of our journeys. I introduced in this book things to encourage you to focus on things that help you. This workbook takes you from day 1 of your period, to day 42 to the testing day. It will give you weekly goals, and daily things to focus on. Plus, it will provide you with the optimal days of sex if your period falls between days 28 to 35. I also created a workbook for men. So they can be more part of this process, know what we need from them, what they need to do themselves to keep healthy, and to able to do their part. This workbook does not guarantee that you will get pregnant. But it will make your cycle more focused, easier to go through. Also, you will create better, more relaxed habits during the cycle. Your chances of getting pregnant will increase. Thank you for buying the workbook, and enjoy the sex that comes with the process.

The Ultimate Guide on CBD Oil for Menstrual Cramps.: A Comprehensive Guide on Menstrual Cramps and CBD Oil with Explicit Explanations on How CBD Oil C - Dr Vincent Ellwood 2019-03-04

The term "period" in reference to menstruation dates from 1822 and means an "interval of time" or a "repeated cycle of events." Another word for menstruation is "catamenia," from the Greek katamenia (kata = by + menia = month). A "catamenia cup" is a firm, flexible cup worn inside the vagina to catch menstrual blood. Menstruation may have led to humanity's sense of time as most early lunar calendars were based on the length of a women's menstrual cycle. Some cultures believed that menstrual blood could cure ailments such as warts, birthmarks, gout, goiters, hemorrhoids, epilepsy, worms, leprosy, and headaches. Menstrual Blood was also used to create love charms and to ward off demons. Additionally, a virgin's first menstrual napkin was thought to be a cure for the plague. A girl's first menstrual period is called a menarche (from the Greek word men = month + arkhe = beginning). After the menarche, ovulation does not usually occur with menstruation for approximately the first year to 18 months. When a girl is born, her complete potential egg supply is born with her. In the womb, she creates about seven million egg cells. At birth, she has two million. By puberty, there are only about 400,000 left, of which fewer than 500 are actually released. Menstruation is the process where an unfertilised egg, or a fertilised egg that has not become embedded in the uterus lining, is removed from the body via blood flow through the vagina. Humans are very rare among species in having the trait of menstruation, as most animals do not bleed on a regular basis to remove the uterus lining and unfertilised egg or underdeveloped embryo. Only humans, monkeys, apes and free-tailed and leaf-nosed bats, and elephant shrews menstruate. In most animals, the uterus lining is reabsorbed into the body if a female does not become pregnant after releasing an egg from the ovary. Women get menstruation every month, but we also don't know everything that we should know about our periods or what happens when we get it. The average woman starts menstruating at the age of 13 and stops at the age of 51 with an average menstruation of 3-7 days per month. This means that the average woman has 456 periods over the span of 38 years; that's roughly 2,280 days or 6.25 years of the average woman's life. Now, think about how much money you spend on your survival pack you require for each menstruation—all the pads, tampons, food, pain pills, heating pads, panties, and so on. It's crazy how expensive periods can be! I'm not going to lie: this is the one time I hope to be average. Read on to learn all about your menstruation, you may think you know it all, but you'll probably learn a thing or two. If you're a female, at some point in time, you'll most likely experience menstrual cramps - a symptom that usually accompanies your monthly reminder of womanhood, better known as your 'period.' Medically referred to as "dysmenorrhea," menstrual cramps causes dull or throbbing pains that take place in the lower region of the stomach. Most women encounter this kind of cramping just before and during their menstrual periods. While nagging for most, some women battle unbearable pain. The good news is that there is another way to take care of those frustrating menstrual pains. Ever heard of cannabidiol (CBD)? Consider using CBD for menstrual cramps during your next cycle. A few scientific pieces of research and studies on the usefulness of CBD in relieving menstrual cramps have supported the benefits of CBD. There are other options like THC tampons, but since most of us want relief without getting high, CBD is an ideal option. It does wonders! It is neither psychoactive nor intoxicating. CBD is the best relief for your menstrual cramps. It's time to say goodbye to the feeling of wear and tear in your lower abdomen. If you have never used CBD products before, don't worry. This book is all you need. Get a copy now!
