Contesting Identities Aaron Baker 2003 Publisher's description: Since the earliest days of the silent era, American filmmakers have been drawn to the visual spectacles of sports and their compelling narratives of conflict, triumph, and individual achievement. In Contesting Identities Aaron Baker examines how these cinematic representations of sports and athletes have evolved over time--from The Pinch Hitter and Buster Keaton's College to White Men Can't Jump, Jerry Maguire, and Girlfight. He focuses on how identities have been constructed and transcended in American society since the early twentieth century. Whether depicting team or individual sports, these films return to that most American of themes, the master narrative of self-reliance. Baker shows that even as sports films tackle socially constructed identities such as class, race, ethnicity, sexuality, and gender, they ultimately underscore transcendence of these identities through self-reliance. In addition to discussing the genre's recurring dramatic tropes, from the populist prizefighter to the hot-headed rebel to the "manly" female athlete, Baker also looks at the social and cinematic impacts of real-life sports figures from Jackie Robinson and Babe Didrikson Zaharias to Muhammad Ali and Michael Jordan.

From Bananas to Buttocks Myra Mendible 2010-06-03 From the exuberant excesses of Carmen Miranda in the "tutti frutti hat" to the curvaceous posterior of Jennifer Lopez, the Latina body has long been a signifier of Latina/o identity in U.S. popular culture. But how does this stereotype of the exotic, erotic Latina "bombshell" relate, if at all, to real Latina women who represent a wide spectrum of ethnicities, national origins, cultures, and physical appearances? How are ideas about "Latinidad" imagined, challenged, and inscribed on Latina bodies? What racial, class, and other markers of identity do representations of the Latina body signal or reject? In this broadly interdisciplinary book, experts from the fields of Latina/o studies, media studies, communication, comparative literature, women's studies, and sociology come together to offer the first wide-ranging look at the construction and representation of Latina identity in U.S. popular culture. The authors consider such popular figures as actresses Lupe Vélez, Salma Hayek, and Jennifer Lopez; singers Shakira and Celia Cruz; and even the Hispanic Barbie doll in her many guises. They investigate the media discourses surrounding controversial Latinas such as Lorena Bobbitt and Marisleydis González. And they discuss Latina representations in Lupe Solano's series of mystery books and in the popular TV shows El Show de Cristina and Laura en América. This extensive treatment of Latina representation in popular culture not only sheds new light on how meaning is produced through images of the Latina body, but also on how these representations of Latinas are received, revised, and challenged.

Girl fight Audrey Chenu 2013-09-19 "3 septembre 2006. Ma première rentrée. Dans quelques minutes, je deviendrai la maîtresse d'une classe de CM1-CM2. Il y a toujours des élèves difficiles. Moi, j'hérite d'un petit garçon d'à peine neuf ans, qui a vite fait de devenir ingérable, violent avec les autres enfants, insolent avec les adultes. On m'apprend que son père est en prison. Une collègue tente de me rassurer : dans ces quartiers, "ça arrive". Mais j'ai du mal à .cacher ce que je ressens, je ne suis déjà plus là. Mon secret, logé dans mon ventre, s'empare de moi. Les anciennes sensations remontent à la surface, intactes. Ma gorge est nouée. Vite, de l'eau froide sur mon visage. Et si ce gamin entendait tout ce que je ne dis pas ? La prison ne vous lâche jamais, quels que soient les vêtements que vous portez. N'est-ce donc jamais terminé" ?
