complicates everything, including love. Five years ago, Jo Harper did a bad thing. Dumped, injured, and in crippling debt, Jo did what any desperate woman with a PhD in psychology and above-average computer skills would: become an elite, undetectable online romance scammer. Now Jo and her team of four young women bring in enough cash to keep them securely afloat. Their targets? Married cheaters. Jamie March, Bay Area royalty known as “The Conscience of Silicon Valley,” hates every aspect of online crime, especially those who defraud people. And when it appears that his brother is the victim of a sophisticated romance scam, he can't stand idly by. What's weird though, is that when Jo and Jamie meet...they don't hate one another. Not at all. He makes her laugh and feel alive again. She challenges his intellect like no other. But they can't trust one another, right? And you can't fall in love with someone you don't trust—or can you?

I Love You, Send Money W. Lawrence Lipton 2013-07-22 To find love is, at best, a Sisyphean occupation, yet it is an occupational activity desired by so many. Internet Romance Scams are operated by both men and women, straight or gay. The target is irrelevant, the basic script remains the same: "Hello, I'm upper class, single, attractive and find you attractive, I love you, help me solve my immediate problem, it's financial, send me money and we'll be together forever." Unlike most books which deal with what are now known as Nigerian scams, this book allows you to follow an actual series of exchanges between known practitioners and Ralph - a successful 68 year-old retired widower. The woman have one thing going for them, Ralph's love-life has been one of marked by a series of very successful whirlwind relationships. From past experience, Ralph is a strong believer in 'love-at-first-sight' - even when first sight consists of an email followed by her making the initial visit. Ralph was born into a world of absolutes, one in which the good guys wore white hats and the bad guy black - unless they were Hopalong Cassidy and Paladin - everything was measured in black and white, trust and distrust. It was a world where the Universe stepped in either to warn or assist. His mind had been trained during the Cold War, and liberated by the Age of Aquarius. Our three ladies present three different characters: • Adrionna is a liar who is marketing porn; • Gigil claims to be a pediatrician and Russian Federation military orphan, but her pictures reveal poses which are more like those of a professional model; • Gurley is also an orphan, by birth an Australian, but with an American father - she deals in gems and is currently stuck in Africa. Which one would you want to Love? Which one would you assist? Ralph knows his answer, he'll give the world to ...

Romance scams, or “Prince Charming” scams, are increasing exponentially and sweeping over every continent. From the United States to Australia, from Europe to Asia. It can happen to any woman: they’re contacted online on a social networking site by improbable characters who after two days fall in love, and after three ask for a money remittance to solve an unexpected and very serious problem. Among all the extortions made over the Internet, romance scams are the most profitable and safest for the rogues of the web. Apparently simple and repetitive, they can have many different facets to them, because over time the method has evolved and been refined. The aim is always the same, to extort money from women by focusing on making them fall in love, using cloned photos, plagiarised poems, and fake information. The process may sometimes even be so simple-minded as to immediately reveal the scam, however, as Romance Scams are highly profitable, criminals have refined the system to manage to cheat the targeted person with very high odds of success. So any woman may come across clumsy flatterers, or rather, encounter skilled weavers of emotions who know how to shape a courtship like a tailor-made garment sewn onto the

As Shelley delved into the world of online romance scams, it was nearly impossible to find advice or expertise that she could use to break the hold the King had on her sister. After a three-month investigation, hiring two private investigators, hacking into email accounts, visiting the FBI, and speaking with psychological experts, what Shelley and the Squad uncovered can now help your loved ones who may be in denial that their online romance could be putting them at grave risk. Linda has since described her ordeal as "the worst thing that ever happened to me." She hopes to help others who've been targeted by scammers to know that strength, forgiveness, and hope exist in the aftermath. Shelley Frost and Linda Young are sisters, whose already rocky relationship was put to the test during the months that the King had his grips on Linda and her bank account. The nightmare they experienced through opposite viewpoints ended up strengthening their sisterhood and their love for each other. become an important communications platform which people choose for personal interactions. One of the most popular manifestations is the creation and maintenance of social relationships using social and dating websites. Unscrupulous operators have identified its potential for reaching vulnerable people and have started using it as platform for their criminal activity in the form of so-called Online Romance Scams. Quickly, this cybercrime has become very successful and thus an increasing threat in the social networking environment. The Online Romance Scam causes considerable financial and emotional damage to the victims. In this research we introduce a theory which helps to explain the success of this scam. In a similar way to the "The Nigerian Letter", we propose that the scam techniques appeal to strong emotions, which are clearly involved in Romantic relationships. We also assume that the same success factors of normal relationships contribute to the success of the Romance Scam. Previous research into normal relationships has identified personal "love stories" as an important factor for the development of relationships. We have suggested that these personal love stories will have a key role in fraudulent relationships. The aim of this research is to explore Online Romance Scams as a type of 'virtual love' which initially creates happiness for the victim in a virtual romantic relationship, but tragically then causes the victim to be separated from his or her savings. Using narrative research methodology, this research will establish a model of the Romance Scam structure and its variations regarding human romantic attitudes. During the research program, the analysis of publicly available data from the internet were used, and as a consequence of this, appropriate ethical usage of research data is discussed. Findings of this research will contribute to the knowledge of the Online Romance Scam as significant crime, and provide information about the structure and the development of the modus operandi which can be used to identify an online relationship as a scam at an early phase in order to prevent significant harm to the victim." --

A rich and successful author, he's admittedly lonely. Is that his motivation? Or is it bigger than that? Is it real, self-sacrificing love? Or is his offer of help just part of a scam? Tricia thinks so.

Scam Story Eva Alderborn 2018-01-19 SCAM STORY is a dazzling novel about passion and fraud and a woman taking charge of her own life. Based on a true story, it contains authentic mails and text messages. The writers wish to shed light on romance scamming by revealing how scammers operate. Scam Story is also an inspirational novel on how to turn a painful life experience to your own advantage and gain inner strength. The feeling is indescribable when Nelly meets James on a dating site. But the love has an unexpected price, and when she realises the truth about him, she makes a decision that will change her life forever: to use the situation, and him, to change within and grow as a human being. But it is a dangerous game. Who is she dealing with? "Nelly does not yet know that she has taken the first step on a journey that will change her life and relentlessly open up borders that she thought were impenetrable." "... on shaking legs she goes out to meet him. Her heart beats irregularly, she has sweaty palms, shallow breathing and it is hard to stop her shaking legs. Her feet are barely touching the floor, it is as if she is floating. She passes through the corridor and customs and towards the doors that will lead to the arrival hall. The doors are opened and her heart stops beating; she is holding her breath and looks around..." For more information about the novel and the authors: <http://scamstoryint.webs.com>
