War Poems Jessie Pope,David Wheeler,2014-07-02 Looking back from the perspective of 2014 it is easy to dismiss Jessie Pope s versified jingoism as a glib call to patriotism and as a facile celebration of the stereotypical British character brave stoical and essentially benevolent reluctantly going to war to teach Germany a lesson However insofar as they capture the public mood at the start of the First World War a mood they helped to create of course they are valuable documents Her derogatory comments against Germany and Germans in general were part and parcel of the propaganda of the day produced in great quantities by the popular press Similarly her assumptions about the inherent superiority of the British race while ridiculous have to be seen in the context of Great Britain s Empire the largest the world has ever seen Moreover reading Jessie Pope s poems provides us with a context in which to read the poetry of Owen Sassoon and Rosenberg Indeed an early draft of Owen s Dulce et Decorum Est was subtitled in Owen s own handwriting To a Certain Poetess there is a consensus that Owen is referring to Jessie Pope When we read Pope s poems we can understand the vehemence of the later war poetry as it is partly a reaction against early propaganda verse like this

The Ragged Trousered Philanthropists Robert Tressell,1962 The Ragged Trousered Philanthropists is a classic representation of the impoverished and politically powerless underclass of British society in Edwardian England ruthlessly exploited by the institutionalized corruption of their employers and the civic and religious authorities Epic in scale the novel charts the ruinous effects of the laissez faire mercantilist ethics on the men women and children of the working classes and through its emblematic characters argues for a socialist politics as the only hope for a civilized and humane life for all It is a timeless work whose political message is as relevant today as it was in Tressell s time For this it has long been honoured by the Trade Union movement and thinkers across the political spectrum
