BODY LANGUAGE & BEHAVIOR CUSTOMS East & West - Arnaud van der Veere 2021-03-12

Most communication is non-verbal. The way we walk, move and look is an expression of who we are and what we think. Our body is constantly signing the world who we are and what we want. It is a constant interaction with our environment. We are constantly reading other people and unconsciously try to understand their signs. When confronted with another culture we face the “translation” problem. We are not able to grasp the right meaning in the context of the moment. There is no possibility to mirror the movements as they are different of our own. There is a communication gap which can create problems. When cultures are vastly different the gap is even larger. How can we bridge this to create understanding and come to results? This book is focused on informing the reader about the Chinese / Western gaps, the differences, and similarities. The reason why we focus on this population in Asia is that their influence stretches over thousands of years and through emigration they did influence many other countries in Asia. In total worldwide it is considered there are over 2.3 billion Chinese at the moment and still growing. Hereby we look at different generations. Sometimes we show the past, the current time and what is expected to happen in the future. Through different levels of communications, the world is slowly moving in a common public direction. But the situation changes in a more private setting for business meetings, personal contacts and in a relationship.

Body Language and The Living Look. - Steen Brock 2023-08-01

This book is a manual for reading Wittgenstein's Nachlass 1929 - 1951 based on hundreds of original manuscripts, and not the highly edited paper books published by Blackwell. The book shows how all thought, language and psychology entangles in body language as this language develops within cultural frameworks. The book further shows that Wittgenstein's platform are viewpoints of Goethe, and that the methodological strategy of Wittgenstein relates to the architectural system of the works of Kant. The book makes clear that Wittgenstein had six philosophical projects 1929 - 1951. The project of "philosophical investigations" is only one of these six projects. The book published with that title in 1953 does not belong to that project. The book discusses three successive versions of "philosophical investigations" and shows how they follow the order of Kant's First Critique; a teaching of Form, an Analytic, and a Dialectic. The book further shows that the idea of a "Third Wittgenstein" is absurd. The writings 1949 - 1951 have one and only one theme concerning the rightfulness of human behaviour. The Nachlass in shorthand: What is a human being? According to Wittgenstein s(he) is a ceremonial animal. Phylogenies and cultural background form the “natural history of Mankind”. Wittgenstein’s texts are contributions to this history. Accordingly, there is an embeddedness of the individual human being in the natural history of Mankind. Individuals internalize this embeddedness through drilling (Abrichtung), through an overwhelming normatively and severe formation of individuals. However, the outcome of this drilling is, in principle a free, imaginative, self-assured adult human being. The “pupils” never copy the “teachers”, and no two pupils are alike. The result is drilled individuals. The main capacity of these drilled individuals is The Attention enabling the individuals to search for things, look at things, and observe things in accordance with interests, needs, feelings, and inclinations that in a sense both were there “anyway” - before the drilling - and in another sense were shaped and empowered by the drilling. The adult human individual is at rest with the drilling s(he) was exposed to. One can regulate, nourish, and guide a human life in that way. Thus, we have the emergence of The Calm Look of the individual adults. However, the teachers witnessing these adults pay attention to a diversity and surprising variety of the outcome of their drilling. The Teachers pay attention to a Living Look they did not anticipate. The Teachers have an instrument making sure that the Living Look does not run wild. They can chain The Attention of the individuals exercising The Living Look. Prime example is Mathematics. There are many other examples of such being civilized, meeting the standards of a social setting or institution. A milder approach of the teachers is trying to induce imaginations within the attention of others without severely chaining The Attention. This brings forth The Induced Look. Now, pupils can both chain and induce the attention of other pupils. Thereby arises The Seducing Look. However, there is a limit to seduction. That is the theme of Shakespeare’s Othello, and theme of Wittgenstein’s last writings, autumn 1949 - Spring 1951: How do evidence and the rightful understanding of others relate? The answer is that if person's expressions meets certain norms, then there is a diverse and open character of behaviour that other people have no reason not to find rightful Which behaviour is right can be very diverse.

Love Signals - David Givens

A world renowned anthropologist explores the nonverbal signs, signals, and cues human beings exchange to attract and keep their mates. As a medium of communication, Love's silent language predates speech by millions of years. Today, we still express emotions and feelings largely apart from words. The postures, gestures, and facial cues of attraction are universal, in all societies and cultures. According to Dr. Givens, courtship moves slowly through five distinct phases: attracting attention, recognition phase, conversation phase, touching phase, making love. Since potential mates "test" each other before uniting as one, courtship is a choreographed give and take of signs granting physical and emotional closeness. Love Signals is part ethnography and part how-to. Dr. Givens documents the little courting rituals witnessed in elevators, on subways, and in the workplace. He examines the essential role the face plays in courtship and how it can be optimally displayed. He decodes the body to find silent messages given off by shoulders, neck, arms, hands, waist, calves, ankles, feet, and toes. Dr. Givens analyzes expressive shapes, colors, and markings encoded in arm wear, shoulder wear, leg wear, and shoes. He deciphers the background messages of spaces, places and interiors to learn how environs help or hinder in the meeting process. Chemical cues emanating from aromas, tastes, steroids, sterols, and hormones strongly shape a partner's feelings, so they are explored as well. The book suggests ways to gaze, ways to read eyes across a room, and ways to sit, stand, align, walk dress, and lift a drink to participate in the fascinating adventure of finding, winning, and keeping a mate. Knowing the unspoken vocabulary of love signals will give readers an edge. What this means for courtship is that the reader becomes able to read unspoken motives, emotions, and feelings with great clarity and precision. The more readers know about the nonverbal idiom of attraction, the more likely they will find a loving, lasting partner.
