Eminent Love - Leddy Harper 2016-06-18
 Life doesn't always start with once upon a time. Love doesn't always end with happily ever after. After spending five years with the love of my life, I did nothing to stop her from walking away. She had her reasons to leave. I had my reasons to stay. But a year later, the realization of loss hits me, and I'll stop at nothing to fix it. I leave everything behind to drive across the country to win her back, and I refuse to accept anything other than fulfilling old promises. But the only certainty in life is: nothing is as expected. The most valuable lessons don't often revolve around a fairytale ending-frequently, they come from hurt and healing. They come from the kind of personal growth love offers. The mending of your heart, your soul, and your life. And every once in a while, you find the greatest gifts in the packages you never expected to open.

Old Love-Letters, Or Letters of Sentiment - Abby Sage Richardson 2017-01-15

Excerpt from Old Love-Letters, or Letters of Sentiment: Written by Persons Eminent in English Literature and History It is a subtle fact which we discover in studying these Old letters, that they reveal. Not only the writer, whose soul, as Johnson says, lies naked in his letter, but that, by a sort of refracted light, they show us the soul of the person written to.
