The Religious Houses of London and Middlesex Caroline M. Barron 2007 "This volume brings together, for the first time, the remarkably detailed accounts of the sixty-five religious houses in London and Middlesex that were originally published by the Victoria Country History in 1909 and 1969. These range from the larger and better known houses, such as Westminster Abbey, to the many small cells and hospitals that were founded in and around London in the centuries before the Reformation. New material has been added for every house in the form of brief guides to recent research, along with revised lists of the heads of these institutions up to the Dissolution. There is also an entirely new introduction, which explores the significance of the religious houses in the spiritual and social life of the city and county during the half millennium of their existence."--BOOK JACKET.

The PFI Contract for the Redevelopment of West Middlesex University Hospital Great Britain. National Audit Office 2002 In January 2001 the West Middlesex University Hospital Trust let a PFI contract to a private sector consortium, Bywest. The contract is for 35 years, with an estimated present net value of £125 million. Bywest are required to develop the Trust's site at Isleworth, and then to provide ongoing maintenance and facilities services. The report contrasts the PFI deal as contracted against the conventional procurement alternative. It finds that: the deal meets expected local needs; in getting the best available PFI deal the Trust applied common sense and had learnt from earlier experience elsewhere in the NHS; the Trust considered that the unquantifiable benefits of the PFI deal outweighed the disbenefits. The NAO makes further recommendations for those engaged in PFI projects, building on those made in its earlier report on Dartford and Gravesham Hospital (HCP 423, 1998-99, ISBN 0102661995)

Middlesex Murders Linda Stratmann 2012-02-29 Middlesex Murders brings together numerous murderous tales, some of which were little known outside the county, and others which made national headlines. Contained within the pages of this book are the stories behind some of the most heinous crimes ever committed in Middlesex. They include the murder of John Draper, whose body was found in a well at Enfield Chase in 1816; 15-year-old John Brill, found beaten to death in a wood in 1837 after giving evidence against two poachers; and Claire Paul, killed with an axe at her home in Ruislip in 1938. Linda Stratmann's carefully researched and enthralling text includes much previously unpublished information and will appeal to everyone interested in the shady side of Middlesex's history.

Middlesex Jeffrey Eugenides 2011-07-18 Spanning eight decades and chronicling the wild ride of a Greek-American family through the vicissitudes of the twentieth century, Jeffrey Eugenides' witty, exuberant novel on one level tells a traditional story about three generations of a fantastic, absurd, lovable immigrant family -- blessed and cursed with generous doses of tragedy and high comedy. But there's a provocative twist. Cal, the narrator -- also Callie -- is a hermaphrodite. And the explanation for this takes us spooling back in time, through a breathtaking review of the twentieth century, to 1922, when the Turks sacked Smyrna and Callie's grandparents fled for their lives. Back to a tiny village in Asia Minor where two lovers, and one rare genetic mutation, set our narrator's life in motion. Middlesex is a grand, utterly original fable of crossed bloodlines, the intricacies of gender, and the deep, untidy promptings of desire. It's a brilliant exploration of divided people, divided families, divided cities and nations -- the connected halves that make up ourselves and our world.

An Historical Account of Those Parishes in the County of Middlesex Daniel Lysons 2018-10-07 Excerpt from An Historical Account of Those Parishes in the County of Middlesex: Which Are Not Described in the Environs of London The district treated of by the Author in his former Work, having comprised so large a portion of the County-of Middlesex, he has been induced, at the suggestion of some of his friends, to offer to the public a similar account of those parishes which he has not already described and he presumes that another volume on the Topography of Middlesex will not be unacceptable, as there is no History of that County extant; nor is there any but a very imperfect account of the Antiquities of the Honour and Palace of Hampton court, which forms one of the most prominent features of the present volume. Although many general views of the palace have been engraved, yet the various beautiful specimens of gothic architecture which there occur have never been delineated for. Publication with tolerable accuracy: of the great hall there is an engraving in some esteem (now become scarce), by Vardy, but the form of the arches is so inaccurate as to destroy in a great degree its resemblance. It may be pointed out, however, that the one-inch Ordnance Survey maps are by no means complete in the marking of all such rights of way; and that here and there footpaths will be found stopped up by order of the District Council.
