

Abatement Of Sexual Offenders Against Children

Vernon L Quinsey

Corporate Crime, Law, and Social Control -

Sally S. Simpson 2002-03-18

Why do corporations obey the law? When companies violate the law, what kinds of interventions are most apt to correct their behavior and return them to compliant status? In this book Sally Simpson examines whether the shift towards the use of criminal law, with its emphasis on punishment and stigmatization, is an effective strategy for controlling illegal corporate behavior. She concludes that strict criminalization models will not yield sufficiently high levels of compliance. Empirical data suggest that in most cases cooperative models work best with most corporate offenders.

Because some corporate managers, however, respond primarily to instrumental concerns, Simpson argues that compliance should also be buttressed by punitive strategies. Her review and application of the relevant empirical literature on corporate crime and compliance combined with her judicious examination of theory and approaches, make a valuable new contribution to the literature on white-collar crime and deterrence and criminal behavior more generally.

Rape Law Reform - Cassia Spohn 2013-11-27

This book evolved from our interest in rape as feminists and as social scientists. As feminists, we were concerned about the treatment of rape victims and the attrition in rape cases under traditional rape law, and we welcomed legal reforms designed to improve the situation. As social scientists, we wondered about the efficacy of legal changes aimed at an inherently resistant court system. We also were curious about the lack of studies examining the impact of these changes; we were particularly surprised to find that no one had attempted to analyze the impact of the reforms in more than one jurisdiction. Convinced that untangling the effects of the reforms from the effects of contextual factors required a multijurisdictional study, we decided to undertake the project. We quickly discovered that evaluating rape law reform in several jurisdictions would be no easy task. We had decided that such an evaluation would require monthly data on the outcome of rape cases before and after the reforms were implemented, as well as qualitative data on the attitudes of criminal justice officials toward the reforms. Because states do not generate monthly data on case outcomes, we would have to collect the data ourselves from court records maintained by individual jurisdictions. To obtain an adequate number of cases for the time-series analysis, we would have to select our sites from large urban jurisdictions scattered throughout the United States.
