Reflections - Dennis Clarke 2017-02-13

The inspiration for these verses came from watching my wife's reflection in the bathroom mirror - and I started composing poems for her. I'd then tape it to the mirror the night before so it would be there, as a surprise, when she got up. That's how my persona as 'The Man in the Mirror' was created. This book of poetry is designed so you can use it the exact same way: by tearing out a page and taping it on the mirror to be read the next morning for your loved one. You could also put it on a pillow, in a purse, pants pocket or suitcase, on their desk or any other area where it can easily be found. It would be fun to send it to their tablet or phone. My wish for you is to use these poems to tell that special someone in your life - man or woman - how much they mean to you. And for you to use these love poems to reignite your relationship. Dennis Clarke portrays the ultimate love, humor, and compassion in his poems through the "Man in the Mirror" persona. He finds joy in writing poems to anyone who needs "kudos" for a job well done; the flight attendants during his many travels as a salesman, new mothers and fathers after the births of their children, and all celebrations.

Messenger in the Mirror - Dyan Belonje 2009

This book explores the challenging, and often painful, relationships we have with others. By encouraging us to examine some of our early influences, we are able to look within and observe our current patterns of behaviour to give us a better understanding of what our pay-offs are and why we attract the relationships that we do. We are shown that people in our lives serve as a mirror, reflecting back to us a unique message about who we are. These messages are the key to our personal growth and once we recognise them, we have the opportunity to take back our power and to start living with greater joy, wisdom, and authenticity.

Krishnamurti stressed that relationship is the mirror in which we see ourselves as we are. If it is born out of love it is not lust, even though great delight may then be present.'

Using the Lamp Instead of Looking Into the Mirror - Ingrid Ljungberg van Beinum 2000-01-01

This book focuses on the enigmatic relationship between men and women, and in particular on the subordination of women by men in the work place. The main points of departure are that subordination is a relational phenomenon and should therefore be approached in a relational context and that the dynamics of relational behaviour primarily evolve through dialogue. The project facilitated and encouraged women and men to engage in more than 100 discussions about their daily relationships, carried out in the context of an intra- and inter-organizational action research project involving three organizations: a nuclear power plant, a school district and a postal district in a province of Sweden. The object was to allow for better mutual understanding and respect from an Irigarayan view where a substrate allows men and women to regard each other in their subjectivity without 'reducing the other to same'. The reflective and analytical nature of this study shows the dynamics of the discussions and their effects on the interpersonal and organizational level. Ingrid Ljungberg van Beinum, D. Soc. Sc., studied at the universities of Uppsala and Leiden. She has lived and worked in Sweden, England, Holland, India and Canada.

The Mirror of Relationship - Jiddu Krishnamurti 1992

This book features excerpts on the title's theme from Krishnamurti's talks and discussions held between 1933 and 1967. They have proven helpful in dialogues and for use in high school and college classrooms. There are talks on marriage, love, relationship, and sex. Krishnamurti states, "sex becomes an extraordinary, difficult, and complex problem so long as you do not understand the mind." Krishnamurti asks the reader to investigate essential questions: How can I live with another without conflict? Why are relationships difficult? What is awareness in relationship? Do I really know what love is? What does it mean to learn in a relationship? What is the role of thought and memory in relating to another? "There is no escape from relationship. In that relationship, which is the mirror in which we can see ourselves, we can discover what we are, our reactions, our prejudices, our fears, depression, anxieties, loneliness, sorrow, pain, grief. We can also discover whether we love or there is no such thing as love. So, we will examine this question of relationship because that is the basis of love."--J. Krishnamurti Madras, India, 1982 "Why does the mind think about sex at all? Why? Why has it become a central issue in your life? Sex has become an extraordinary, difficult, and complex problem so long as you do not understand the mind, which thinks about the problem. The act itself can never be a problem but thought about the act creates the problem." -J. Krishnamurti, The First and Last Freedom.
