Want a Better Mother-Daughter Relationship? Gloria Hamiltan

2014-04-30 After a brief introduction of the author and her daughter, this short course shows how two very different people can have a beautiful relationship permanently. Gloria: "It is incredible that, despite our best endeavours we are still so tied to past cultural and familial conditioning. Looking back now, knowing what I know now after decades of self-improvement, there are a lot of things I would do differently." Alpha: "I look back on my childhood and am incredibly thankful for the mother I had. The person my mother is now is even better, and it's been a journey of self- discovery for both of us, as I find my feet as an individual adult, and the relationship that Mum and I have further develops. I've seen Mum work at allowing me the space to grow, and giving me guidance and role-modelling being happy and living her life to the fullest. It's these learnings and growth opportunities that we now want to pass on to other mothers and daughters, because they are so incredibly uplifting."

INTRODUCTION As individuals, people are complex so is it any wonder that the relationship between a mother and daughter is very complex and diverse? CHAPTER 1: CHANGE YOURSELF You can never change another person, ever. If you've ever tried to change anything on yourself, you'll know how hard that is so, no wonder it is impossible to change someone else. In any case, no one has the right to try to change anyone else. CHAPTER 2: SHE MADE ME DO IT! IT'S HER FAULT! No one, but, no one can make you do anything without you allowing it. CHAPTER 3: COMMUNICATE Lack of communication is a common challenge with mothers and daughters. It's often because they are so close that they believe that each of them should know how the other one feels without having to be told. What happens as a result is they don't communicate. Or they get short with each other and then speak harshly to each other, in ways they'd never speak to everyone else, which causes hurt feelings that don't go away so easily. CHAPTER 4: DEAL WITH IT AS IT ARISES One of the key principles in sustaining healthy and satisfying relationships is to deal with situations as they arise, not later, but as they arise. Brooding about them, giving each other the cold shoulder, making sarcastic, pointed remarks; none of that is constructive to settling a difference of opinion. CHAPTER 5: EMPATHISE: It's better to be kind than to be right. Simply put, to empathise means putting yourself in the other person's shoes. Empathy widens the lens of your vision. A daughter may have a Narcissistic mother or a mother can have a Narcissistic daughter. This is a form of illness, often referred to as a "closet illness." We look at Narcissism. CHAPTER 6: FORGIVE Forgiveness is an individual act. It differs from reconciliation, which can affect many persons that is, groups. But here we are addressing the mother-daughter relationship. CHAPTER 7: AGREE TO DISAGREE There are situations when we are better off 'letting it go' than disagreeing. We cannot agree with everything that anyone says and does. That is impossible. It would be unrealistic to think otherwise. The important thing is not to take anything personally CHAPTER 8: LONELINESS How a mother can feel lonely in a seemingly happy home. How a daughter can feel lonely in a happy home. CHAPTER 9: THE POWER OF LOVE Love, what is love? We know that love is the most important emotion, the most important value of them all and, we often hear or read that love conquers all. We also look at respect. CONCLUSION Who controls your emotions? The role of Stress and how to reduce self-imposed stress We look at Values, Beliefs and Attitudes. This book is to show you that every situation can be resolved, every relationship breakdown can be improved and fixed, and there are no insurmountable problems as long as we come from a loving place, from our positive ego. Throughout the book there are ACTION STEPS to individualise the content and stra

Mother Hunger Kelly McDaniel 2021-07-20 An insatiable need for sex and love. Periods of overeating or starving. A pattern of unstable and painful relationships. Does this sound painfully familiar? Trauma counselor Kelly McDaniel has seen these traits over and over in clients who feel trapped in cycles of harmful behaviors-and are unable to stop. Many of us find ourselves stuck in unhealthy habits simply because we don't see a better way. With Mother Hunger, McDaniel helps women break the cycle of destructive behavior by taking a fresh look at childhood trauma and its lasting impact. In doing so, she destigmatizes the shame that comes with being under-mothered and misdiagnosed.

McDaniel offers a healing path with powerful tools that include therapeutic interventions and lifestyle changes in service to healthy relationships. The constant search for mother love can be a lifelong emotional burden, but healing begins with knowing and naming what we are missing. McDaniel is the first clinician to identify Mother Hunger, which demystifies the search for love and provides the compass that each woman needs to end the struggle with aching, lonely emptiness, and come home to herself.

You're Wearing That? Deborah Tannen 2006-12-26 Deborah Tannen's #1 New York Times bestseller You Just Don't Understand revolutionized communication between women and men. Now, in her most provocative and engaging book to date, she takes on what is potentially the most fraught and passionate connection of women's lives: the mother-daughter relationship. It was Tannen who first showed us that men and women speak different languages. Mothers and daughters speak the same language—but still often misunderstand each other, as they struggle to find the right balance between closeness and independence. Both mothers and daughters want to be seen for who they are, but tend to see the other as falling short of who she should be. Each overestimates the other's power and underestimates her own. Why do daughters complain that their mothers always criticize, while mothers feel hurt that their daughters shut them out? Why do mothers and daughters critique each other on the Big Three—hair, clothes, and weight—while longing for approval and understanding? And why do they scrutinize each other for reflections of themselves? Deborah Tannen answers these and many other questions as she explains why a remark that would be harmless coming from anyone else can cause an explosion when it comes from your mother or your daughter. She examines every aspect of this complex dynamic, from the dark side that can shadow a woman throughout her life, to the new technologies like e-mail and instant messaging that are transforming mother-daughter communication. Most important, she helps mothers and daughters understand each other, the key to improving their relationship. With groundbreaking insights, pitch-perfect dialogues, and deeply moving memories of her own mother, Tannen untangles the knots daughters and mothers can get tied up in. Readers will appreciate Tannen's humor as they see themselves on every page and come away with real hope for breaking down barriers and opening new lines of communication. Eye-opening and heartfelt, You're Wearing That? illuminates and enriches one of the most important relationships in our lives. "Tannen analyzes and decodes scores of conversations between moms and daughters. These exchanges are so real they can make you squirm as you relive the last fraught conversation you had with your own mother or daughter. But Tannen doesn't just point out the pitfalls of the mother-daughter relationship, she also provides guidance for changing the conversations (or the way that we feel about the conversations) before they degenerate into what Tannen calls a mutually aggravating spiral, a "self-perpetuating cycle of escalating responses that become provocations." - The San Francisco Chronicle

The Mother-Daughter Project SuEllen Hamkins 2008-03-25 Few things are more meaningful—or more complicated—than mother-daughter relationships. This helpful parenting guide helps moms navigate their relationships with their daughters to create strong ties and a close, respectful connection that will last a lifetime.

SuEllen Hamkins, MD, and Renée Schultz, MA, originally created the Mother-Daughter Project with other women in their community in the hopes of strengthening their bonds with their then seven-year-old girls. The group met regularly to speak frankly about such issues as friendships and aggression, puberty, body image, drugs, and sexuality. The results were amazing: confident, assertive teenage girls with strong self-images and close ties to their moms. Equally important, the mothers navigated their own concerns about adolescence with integrity and grace. From their dedication and efforts arose The Mother-Daughter Project, an incredibly useful parenting handbook that details the success of the Project's groundbreaking model, providing mothers with a road map for staying close with their own daughters through adolescence and beyond.

Risks for Aggressive Girls: Individual Characteristics, Parenting, and Mother-daughter Relationship Quality Alice K. Vaughan 2006

The main goal of this research was to investigate the risk factors associated with girls' overt and indirect aggression using a sample of 84 girls, aged 5-12, and their female primary caregivers referred to the Girls Connection (GC), a treatment program for aggressive girls. Past research highlights the importance of parenting skills and parent-child relationships in children's development. Due to the significant role of same-sex modeling, the behaviour of mothers is particularly important in understanding girls' behaviour problems. Structural equation modeling revealed that parenting skills mediated the association of girls' individual risk characteristics and their overtly aggressive behaviour. Parenting skills did not mediate the association of girls' individual risk characteristics and their indirect aggression. This research has implications for programs such as the GC, which focus on skill development of girls with behaviour problems and their parents. This study highlights the importance of promoting positive parenting skills early to prevent the consolidation of maladaptive relationship styles.

In-law Relationships Geoffrey L. Greif 2020-11-06 Marriage is a major step in a relationship, and each member of that newly joined pair brings with them their own existing family and the corresponding complexity and richness of in-law relationships.

These are multi-generational, multi-layered, and, like a kaleidoscope, a shifting amalgam of emotional colors. Exceptionally important, in-law relationships can be joyous and comforting. They can also be complicated, contentious, and disappointing. These ties serve as a model for how to stay connected across generations for the well-being of grandparents, parents, and grandchildren, and as a bellwether for what to avoid. Drawing on interviews and survey data with more than 1,500 mothers-in-law, fathers-in-law, daughters-in-law, and sons-in-law, the book describes how these complicated and highly significant relationships develop over time. Geoffrey L. Greif and Michael E. Woolley focus on the relationships between mothers-in-law and daughters-in-law as well as fathers-in-law with sons-in-law. They describe the struggles as well as the triumphs that people encounter with these relationships from the perspectives of both generations and suggest ways to improve the relationships. To improve in-law relationships, Greif and Woolley present action-oriented family therapy theories based on the insight, communication, boundary building, and narratives that family members wish to create. They also explore how these relationships change with the normal transitions of marrying into the family, having children/grandchildren, and aging. In-law Relationships describes highly successful and nurturing connections as well as those that are troubled and distant. The resulting book offers a variety of clinical lenses to help readers of all backgrounds focus on and, if needed, repair in-law relationships.

Sure to become a classic on female empowerment, a groundbreaking exploration of the personal, cultural, and global implications of intergenerational trauma created by patriarchy, how it is passed down from mothers to daughters, and how we can break this destructive cycle. personally? What fuels the uncertainty and lack of confidence so many women often feel? In this paradigm-shifting book, leading feminist thinker Bethany Webster identifies the source of women's trauma. She calls it the Mother Wound—the systemic disenfranchisement of women by the patriarchy—and reveals how this cycle is perpetuated by wounded mothers who unconsciously pass on damaging beliefs and behaviors to their daughters. In her workshops, online courses, and talks, Webster has helped countless women re-examine their lives and their relationships with their mothers, giving them the vocabulary to voice their pain, and encouraging them to share their experiences. In this manifesto and self-help guide, she offers practical tools for identifying the manifestations of the Mother Wound in our daily life and strategies we can use to heal ourselves and prevent our daughters from enduring the same pain. In addition, she offers step-by-step advice on how to reconnect with our inner child, grieve the mother we didn't have, stop people-pleasing, and, ultimately, transform our heartache and anger into healing and self-love. Revealing how women are affected by the Mother Wound, even if they don't personally identify as survivors, Discovering the Inner Mother revolutionizes how we view mother-daughter relationships and gives us the inspiration and guidance we need to improve our lives and ultimately create a more equitable society for all.

Personality Development In Adolescence Eva Skoe

2005-07-22 The formation of identity in adolescence is the most central concept in psychological and sociological studies of young people. Most theories to date assume that adolescents share the same conditions under which their identities are formed.

Personality Development in Adolescence is a collection of work by leading researchers that considers different contexts affecting personality and identity development. Three main contexts are considered: cultural, family and life-span development. Of central importance to developmental psychologists, this collection will also be valuable to social workers, teachers, nurses and all those whose work involves young people.

The Language of Love and Guilt Ruth Wodak 1986-01-01

Although mother and daughter are two central female roles, they have rarely been investigated. The relationship is specific, certainly different than the mother-son or father-daughter relationships. And this difference manifests itself in sex-specific language behavior. Despite 'eternal' features of the mother-daughter relationship, its quality is affected by individual psychological and by sociocultural variables. Thus, investigations took place in two big cities with very different structures and traditions: Vienna and Los Angeles. This is the first cross-cultural study which reflects and combines multiple linguistic, socio-psycholinguistic and text linguistic categories, approaches and methods to be able to investigate such an important topic as family relationships and the 'place' of women nowadays in our societies.

Mothers-in-Law and Daughters-in-Law Deborah M. Merrill

2007-09-30 We all know - have perhaps told a few - stories about mothers-in-law and daughters-in-law. It seems the stories are nearly always about relationships filled with conflict and abrasive words or actions. But why is this relationship so difficult? And is it always as bad as popular belief would have us think? Deborah Merrill, a woman's advocate and Sociology professor at one of our nation's top universities, has been studying the relationship for nearly a decade and, in this book, explains where the difficulty is rooted, how friendly pairs have made it past problems that surface between a man's mother and his wife, and how they became friends. Dozens of interviews with pairs of women made in-laws by marriage illustrate Merrill's points, from harmful ideas and actions to helpful approaches. At its core, this book holds that marriage requires the creation of a new and separate family, which requires changes in roles, as well as a redefinition of relationships. Hence, family boundaries need to be made permeable to allow for integration of the daughter-in-law, and to allow the son to create his own separate and autonomous family. Family members need to be aware of, and prepare for, this, says Merrill. That, of course, may be easier said than done. But dozens of women who have become friends with their in-laws — some so much so that they drop the in-law and just call each other mother and daughter — explain how they got past the old, popular notions and social structure, to create goodwill and grow stronger families.

A Daughter's Journey Home Linda Mintle 2003-12-30 Many women can identify with the sentiment, "I love my mom, BUT . . ." The Daughterhood Natasha Fennell 2015-02-26 A group of 40-something women explore the relationships each has with their mother, agreeing to improve those relationships before it's too late When Natasha Fennell's mother was diagnosed with a progressive illness, she wasn't ready to do deal with the inevitability of what this would bring. Sitting outside the hospital after visiting one day, Natasha wondered how she would cope when her mother was gone. There started a panic and self-scrutiny. Had she been a good enough daughter? Would she have enough time to do all the things she wanted to do with her mother before she died? Natasha knew that she couldn't be the only one feeling this way. She began her research and quickly learned that other daughters had similar fears and had never spoken about them before. Love for their mothers, regret for opportunities missed, resentments and emotional complexities all bubbled to the surface. Through these conversations, a friendship blossomed with Róisín Ingle, popular columnist at the Irish Times. After a call out in Róisín's column, hundreds of responses poured in and there The Daughterhood was formed. The Daughterhood is the funny, poignant, and occasionally heart-breaking story of nine daughters coming together to talk about their mothers and the joy and despair that this relationship brings. Over a period of months they commit to completing various tasks all in the hope of improving their relationship with the most important woman in their lives - before she dies.

But this is just what you're going to find out with this life journal. You're going to learn how your relationship with your mom affects your current relationships and decide for yourself how to make it all you'd hoped for: A relationship of rewards and admiration and respect. It's within your reach, I promise. You'll be thrilled at reaching this level of intimacy! It takes passion and a commitment to building the relationship you want. And what you learn in this relationship carries over into all your other relationships. Asking ... answering ... sharing ... listening instead of talking, and moving outside of yourself to feel compassion and empathy for those for those you love most. The mother-daughter relationship is complex to be sure. Many women ask whether there's hope for one so frustrating, so painful and at times, so contentious? Without a doubt ... I say a resounding yes! Now, without wasting another moment, let me share some of the secrets of the mother and daughter relationship with you ... Secret #1: A great relationship starts with asking (the right!) questions We learn by listening and to listen, you have to ask questions. The trick is to ask questions that really matter. Questions that teach us how to transform our relationship into one more deep and meaningful. Questions that help us learn not only where we come from but give us guidance to where we're going. You find questions like ... * How far back can you remember in your life? * How expressive was your family? * Did you know your grandparents? I've carefully designed each of these questions (there's over 100 covering an entire life span) to help you put the pieces together, to begin to build a foundation for your relationship and to finally begin to understand one another. Where most of us fall short is in really hearing. Like one of my readers, Suzanne: She had a history of abuse in her past and as a result was becoming overly protective of her daughter, 11, almost to the point of obsession. Her daughter was growing resentful of the control that her mom was exerting over her every move and Suzanne felt this strain in their relationship. Recognizing that one of the questions in the book might help their relationship, she shared her past abuse with her daughter. She'd wanted to protect her and keep her from the bad things in life of course, as we all want for our children, but slowly became aware that it was suffocating her daughter and not allowing her to grow. Interestingly, through talking to her daughter, she realized that her own abuse began when she was 11 ... this was an important age for her and brought back memories that were uncomfortable. She hadn't made the connection until they began talking, but ultimately she realized they were just that ... her memories. Not those of her daughter. The best part? She said they shared a hug for the first time in over a year! Which brings us to the heart of the mother-daughter relationship and the next secret: Secret #2: We desire ... even expect ... unconditional love in this relationship Wow ... this is a pretty tall order, isn't it? But we expect it nonetheless and when it falls short it can be pretty painful. And, this disappointment can affect nearly every relationship that follows. There's a very real reason for the conflict that occurs between mother and daughter ... and it's a noble one. Once you learn this reason, things become very clear and I share this in detail with you in the journal. But as an overview, I can say that sometimes as moms and daughters we're just too much the sa particularly one that incorporates data from pairs of mothers and daughters...I believe that the contents provide useful material for instructors, researchers, and therapists alike.î - Rosemary Blieszner, PhD Professor of Gerontology and Family Studies Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University The mother/daughter tie is one that persists well past childhood and it takes on unique characteristics as daughter enter midlife and mothers enter old age. Incorporating vivid descriptions by mothers and daughters about their relationships, this book addresses both the rewards and the costs that mothers and daughters incur in maintaining their relationships into old age. For psychologists, gerontologists, and sociologists, as well as academics and researchers in womenís and family studies.

Mothers and Daughters Alice Hanna Deakins 2012 Nationally and internationally known feminist scholars frame, analyze, and explore mother-daughter bonds in this collection of essays. Cultures from around the world are mined for insights which reveal historical, generational, ethnic, political, religious, and social class differences.

The Common Thread Martha Manning 2002-03-26 There is no relationship more fulfilling, infuriating, emotional, and problematic than that of a mother and daughter. Psychology has traditionally regarded as inevitable -- and, in fact, necessary -- a female child's eventual separation from her mother as adulthood ensues. Now renowned psychologist and author Martha Manning offers mothers and daughters of all ages a revolutionary new way of understanding each other and their relationships, and challenges the accepted thinking that this powerful bond must ultimately be severed. In a work of intelligence, wit, heart, and scholarship, Manning examines this important link and concludes that it is a precious attachment that is never outgrown -- that, while the differing, ever-changing needs, conflicts, and obligations of two distinct women may create a chasm between them, bridging the gap will serve to strengthen a lifelong commitment, love, and identity, while fostering essential independence. The key is empathy. Through empathy -- the ability to perceive the other's actions as an aspect of individual behavior -- even a troubled relationship can become gratifying and beautiful. Exploring the developmental stages of the mother-daughter union from infancy through old age, Manning provides potent tools to help us build stronger ties, enabling us to celebrate rather than eschew the twists and turns, joys, secrets, and surprises inherent in this most glorious of life connections. She also focuses new attention on the parts played by cultural, historical, psychological, and biological influences, areas often ignored in previous works on the subject. Drawing on her personal experiences as a mother, daughter, and "champion eavesdropper," combined with scrupulous research and intriguing insights culled from today's headlines, literature, pop culture, and extensive clinical experience, the author casts a fascinating new light on what can -- and should -- be a dynamic, fluid, and mutually empowering relationship. For everyone who is, and always will be, a mother, a daughter, or both, this important, inspiring book will guide the reader toward a new love and respect born of understanding and the enriching ability to find the common thread.

Mother Daughter Speak Grace Ji-Sun Kim 2017-05-31 Mother-daughter relationships can be wonderful and powerful. They can also be stressful, challenging, and painful; yet they are often delicate and tender. After losing her own mother, Kim shares that strengthening her own mother-daughter relationship became more important than ever. Kim's and Lee's personal reflections in this book from family, to real life challenges, to faith, are attempts to open the dialogue between family members and communities. They share some of their vulnerabilities and pains in hopes that this kind of sharing will encourage others to engage in similar intimate dialogue.
