Garçon manqué (21) Samuel Champagne, 2014-03-13T00:00:00-04:00 « Oh, la jolie petite fille ! » Je suis pas mal sûr que c'est ce qu'on a dit quand je suis né. On a regardé entre mes jambes et le sort en était jeté. Après, ça n'a plus arrêté. « Regarde ses beaux cheveux longs, comme ceux d'un ange », disait toujours mon grand-père. Et mon frère refusait que je reste dans sa chambre quand il était avec ses amis : « Tu ne peux pas jouer avec nous, je ne veux pas d'une petite sœur dans les pattes. » Puis j'entendais ma mère me complimenter : « Éloïse, regarde-toi, ma belle, tu as l'air d'une princesse dans cette robe. » Éloïse. Je savais que c'était mon nom. Mais qui étaient la sœur, la belle, la poupée dont ils parlaient? Je ne me reconnaissais pas dans ces mots, je me sentais différent et je ne comprenais pas pourquoi. Quelque chose en moi avait mal. Les miroirs et le temps ont répondu à mes questions. J'ai vu un corps de fille. Et pourtant... Malgré mon corps féminin, je sais que ce n'est pas moi. Moi, je suis un garçon. Un gars, un homme, un ti-cul, un dude... Ou vous pouvez tout simplement m'appeler Éloi. Parfois, la nature fait une erreur, et un enfant naît dans le mauvais corps. Il se livre alors à un horrible combat intérieur, acceptant difficilement son physique comme étant le sien. Lorsque cette personne prend conscience de sa différence, lorsqu'elle décide que le changement de sexe est sa seule option, un immense processus s'enclenche. L'auteur, lui-même en transition, utilise son expérience pour raconter tous les obstacles inhérents à la transsexualité.

Remnants of the Franco-Algerian Rupture Mona El Khoury, 2020-09-28 At the end of French colonization in Algeria, four categories of people held French citizenship or had strong ties with France: European settlers, Jews, mixed-race individuals, and Harkis. The end of the War of Independence exiled most of them from Algeria, traumatized them in various ways, and transferred many to metropolitan France. Remnants of the Franco-Algerian Rupture: Archiving Postcolonial Minorities examines the legacies of these transnational identities through narratives that dissent from official histories, both in France and Algeria. This literature takes particular stories of exile and loss and constructs a memory around a Mosaic father figure embodying the native land, Algeria. Mona El Khoury argues that these filiation narratives create a postcolonial archive: a discursive foundation that makes historical minorities visible, while disrupting French and Algerian hegemonies. El Khoury questions the power of literature to repair history while contending that these literary strategies seek to do justice to the dead Algerian father, even as they valorize enduring minority identifications.

Hybrid Anxieties C.L. Quinan, 2020-12 Situated at the crossroads of queer theory and postcolonial studies, Hybrid Anxieties analyzes the intertwined and composite aspects of identities and textual forms in the wake of the French-Algerian War (1954–1962). C. L. Quinan argues that the war precipitated a dynamic in which a contestation of hegemonic masculinity occurred alongside a production of queer modes of subjectivity, embodiment, and memory that subvert norms. Innovations in literature and cinema were also directly impacted by the long and difficult process of decolonization, as the war provoked a rethinking of politics and aesthetics. The novels, films, and poetry analyzed in Hybrid Anxieties trace this imbrication of content and form, demonstrating how a postwar fracturing had both salutary and injurious effects, not only on bodies and psyches but also on artistic forms. Adopting a queer postcolonial perspective, Hybrid Anxieties adds a new impulse to the question of how to rethink hegemonic notions of gender, sexuality, and nationality, thereby opening up new spaces for considering the redemptive and productive possibilities of negotiating life in a postcolonial context. Without losing sight of the trauma of this particularly violent chapter in history, Hybrid Anxieties proposes a new kind of hybridity that, however anxious and anticipatory, emphasizes the productive forces of a queer desire to deconstruct teleological relationships between past, present, and future.

Francophone Women Cybelle McFadden Wilkens, Cybelle H. McFadden, Sandrine F. Teixidor, 2010 Francophone Women: Between Visibility and Invisibility underscores the writing of authors who foreground the female body and who write across geographical borders, as part of a global literary movement that has the French language as its common denominator. This edited collection exposes how female authors portray the tensions that exist between visibility and invisibility, public and private, presence and absence, and excess and restraint when it is linked to femininity and the female body. --Book Jacket.

Tomboy Nina Bouraoui, 2007-01-01 Tomboy is the story of a girl whose father calls her Brio, whose alter ego is Amine, and whose mother is a blue-eyed blond. But who is she? Born five years after Algerian independence in 1967, she navigates the cultural, emotional, and linguistic boundaries of identity living in a world that doesn't seem to recognize her.

Writing the Nomadic Experience in Contemporary Francophone Literature Katharine N. Harrington, 2013 In this book, Author Katharine N. Harrington examines contemporary writers from the French-speaking world who can be classified as literary nomads. The concept of nomadism, based on the experience of traditionally mobile peoples lacking any fixed home, reflects a postmodern way of thinking that encourages individuals to reconsider rigid definitions of borders, classifications, and identities. Nomadic identities reflect shifting landscapes that defy taking on fully the limits of any one fixed national or cultural identity. In conceiving of identities beyond the boundaries of national or cultural origin, this book opens up the space for nomadic subjects whose identity is based just as much on their geographical displacement and deterritorialization as on a relationship to any one fixed place, community, or culture. This study explores the experience of an existence between borders and its translation into writing that. While nomadism is frequently associated with post-colonial authors, this study considers an eclectic group of contemporary Francophone writers who are not easily defined by the boundaries of one nation, one culture, or one language. Each of the four writers, J.M.G. LeClzio, Nancy Huston, Nina Bouraoui, and R gine Robin maintains a connection to France, but it is one that is complicated by life experiences, backgrounds, and choices that inevitably expand their identities beyond the Hexagon. Harrington examines how these authors' life experiences are reflected in their writing and how they may inform us on the state of our increasingly global world where borders and identities are blurred.

Contested Borders William J. Spurlin,2022-06-06 Contested Borders broadens understandings of dissident sexualities in Africa through examining new representations of same-sex desire emerging in recent francophone autofictional writing from the Maghreb, where long-established traditions pertaining to gender and sexuality are brought into contact with new forms of gender and sexual dissidence, resulting from the inflection of globally circulating discourses and embodiments of queerness in North Africa, and from the experience of emigration and settlement by the writers concerned in France. The book analyses specifically how Franco-Maghrebi writers Rachid O., Abdellah Taïa, Eyet-Chékib Djaziri, and Nina Bouraoui foreground translation and narrative reflexivity around incommensurable spaces of queerness in order to index their crossings and negotiations of multiple languages, histories and cultures. By writing in French, Spurlin demonstrates that the writers are not merely mimicking the language of their former coloniser but inflecting a European language with discursive turns of phrase indigenous to North Africa, thus creating new possibilities of meaning and expression to name their lived experiences of gender and sexual alterity—a form of (queer) translational praxis that destabilises received gender/sexual categories both within the Maghreb and in Europe.

This "Self" Which Is Not One Natalie Edwards,Christopher Hogarth,2010-03-08 The “Self” Which is Not One: Women’s Life-Writing in French, assembles articles on women’s life-writing from diverse areas of the Francophone world. It is comprised of nine chapters that discuss female writers from North Africa, Sub-Saharan Africa, the Caribbean and Europe, in addition to French writers. The idea of the self is currently attracting widespread interest in academia, most notably in the arts and humanities. The development of postmodernism supposes a fragmented “subject” formed from the network of available discourses, rather than a stable and coherent self. Jacques Derrida, for example, wrote that there is no longer any such things as a “full subject,” and Julia Kristeva now insists that the individual is a “subject in process.” The growing importance of psychoanalytic theory, particular in French studies, has also impacted upon this development. The basic tenet of psychoanalytic theory is that the individual is formed of a duality: the conscious and unconscious parts of the self which prevent the individual from ever fully knowing her/himself, and which thus insists upon a plural, incomplete self.

Developments in the field of postcolonial studies have also made us aware of different ways of approaching the self in different parts of the world, and eroded the idea of a stable, conscious and complete self. As scholars examine these new ways of approaching the self, autobiography has been the subject of renewed interest. Several academic books have appeared in recent years that study the ways in which autobiographers represent the self as incomplete, evolving and elusive. In particular, a number of books have appeared on the subject of women's autobiography and female subjectivity, such as works by Sidonie Smith, Julia Watson and Nancy Miller, and several volumes interrogate postcolonial women's autobiography, such as texts by Françoise Lionnet, Gayatri Spivak, Carole Boyce Davies and Chandra Mohanty. Our volume unites these strands of criticism, by examining ways that female autobiographies write the self as a fragmented, plural construct across the Francophone world. This will be the first book-length study of this important development. This volume will be of interest primarily to students and scholars working in the areas of life-writing, French and Francophone studies, postcolonial studies and gender studies. The volume contributes to multiple areas that are currently garnering substantial interest in academe: postcolonial studies, Francophone studies, gender studies and women's writing. By comparing works from across the Francophone world, our volume takes a global approach to the genre of autobiography and its inflections by women writers. The "Self" That is Not One in Women's Autobiography in French therefore represents a timely intervention in several interlinking academic fields and will thus garner substantial interest.

The Body in Francophone Literature El Hadji Malick Ndiaye, Moussa Sow, 2016-05-10 Much of Francophone literature is a response to an elaborate discourse that served to bolster colonial French notions of national grandeur and to justify expansion of French territories overseas. A form of colonial exoticism saw the colonized subject as a physical, cultural, aesthetic and even sexual singularity. Francophone writers sought to rehabilitate the status of non-Western peoples who, through the use of anthropometric techniques, had been racially classified as inferior or primitive. Drawing on various Francophone texts, this collection of new essays offers a compelling study of the literary body--both corporeal and figurative. Topics include the embodiment of diasporic identity, the body politic in prison writing, women's bodies, and the body's expression of trauma inflicted by genocidal violence.

Garçon Manqué Judith McNaught, 1999-02-18 1820. Désespéré après la mort de sa femme et de son fils, Patrick Bromleigh décide de faire table rase du passé et part sillonner les routes d'Amérique avec sa fille Sheridan le seul enfant qui lui reste. Cette vie de vagabondage qui leur convient si bien prend fin lorsqu'ils rendent visite à Cornelia Faraday, la tante de Sheridan. Horrifiée par l'allure de la jeune fille - un vrai garçon manqué qui jure comme un charretier ! - elle décide de prendre son éducation en main. Quelques années plus tard, Sheridan, devenue une jeune femme élégante et distinguée, est chargée de chaperonner en Angleterre l'une de ses amies qui doit se marier. Elle est loin de se douter que ce départ est le prélude à une aventure extraordinaire qui va bouleverser son existence... et lui faire rencontrer l'amour. Un superbe divertissement.

Garçon manqué Nina Bouraoui,2000-09-01 « Je deviens Brio. Être la première en tout. Être un garçon avec la grâce d'une fille. Brio pour toute l'Algérie. Brio contre toute la France. Brio contre mon corps qui me fait de la peine. Brio contre la femme qui dit : Quelle jolie petite fille. Tu t'appelles comment ? Ahmed. Sa surprise. Mon défi. Sa gêne. Ma victoire. Je fais honte au monde entier. Je salis l'enfance. C'est un jeu pervers. C'est un jeu d'enfant. Non je ne veux pas me marier. Non, je ne laisserai pas mes cheveux longs. Non, je ne marcherai pas comme une fille. Non, je ne suis pas française. »

Translating Transgressive Texts Pauline Henry-Tierney,2023-12-22 Through close examination of references to gender identity, female sexuality and corporeality, this book is the first of its kind to shed light on the complexities of translating the recent transgressive turn in contemporary women's writing in French. Via four case studies, namely, the translations into English of Nelly Arcan's Putain (2001), Catherine Millet's La Vie sexuelle de Catherine M. (2001), Nancy Huston's Infrarouge (2010) and Nina Bouraoui's Garçon manqué (2000), this book explores how transgressive topoi such as prostitution, anorexia, matrophobia, rape, female desire, and transgenderism are translated. The book considers how (auto)fictional female selves portrayed are dis/placed by translation at both a textual and paratextual level. Combining feminist phenomenological perspectives on female lived experience with feminist translation theory, this interdisciplinary study offers an insight into how the experiential is brought into language, how it journeys via language into new cultural contexts via translation and creates a dialogical space in which the subjectivities of those involved (author, narrator, protagonist, translator) become open to the porosity of encounters with alterity. The volume will appeal to scholars in translation studies, French Studies, and gender and sexuality studies, particularly those interested in feminist translation and literary translation.

The World in Movement ,2019-04-09 This book focuses on one of the main issues of our time in the Humanities and Social Sciences as it analyzes the impact of current global migrations on new forms of living together and the formation of new identities and homes.

Arab Women's Lives Retold Nawar Al-Hassan Golley,2007-10-18 Examining late twentieth-century autobiographical writing by Arab women novelists, poets, and artists, this essay collection explores the ways in which Arab women have portrayed and created their identities within differing social environments. The collection goes well beyond dismantling standard notions of Arab female subservience, exploring the many ways Arab women writers have learned to speak to each other, to their readers, and to the world at large. Drawing from a rich body of literature, the essays attest to the surprisingly lively and committed roles Arab women play in varied geographic regions, at home and abroad. These recent writings assess how the interplay between individual, private, ethnic identity and the collective, public, global world of politics has impacted Arab women's rights.
