Aircraft Salvage in the Battle of Britain and the Blitz Andy Saunders 2014-05-31 "A well-documented photographic portrayal, detailing a plethora of aircraft shot down and salvaged in Great Britain during World War Two."—Stand Easy Blog

Aircraft Salvage in the Battle of Britain and the Blitz is comprised of 140-150 images of the work of RAF and civilian salvage squads during the Battle of Britain, the Blitz and beyond. The images depict losses across Britain, both RAF and German, during this period. Each picture tells its own story and is fully captioned with historical detail. Each section has a short introduction and the images include those of shot down aircraft, including relatively intact machines, badly damaged/destroyed wreckages, photographs of pilots and other related illustrations. All images are from the author's unique collection of wartime photographs of Luftwaffe losses, collected from a variety of sources across some thirty-five years of research. "Part of a sprawling series, Aircraft Salvage in the Battle of Britain and the Blitz gives us a really entertaining look at aircraft wrecks."—War History Online "The variety of aircraft types featured is wide, from the Me 109 and Heinkel He 111 there are also Me 110 (including the one flown by Rudolf Hess) and Ju 88s plus Spitfires and Hurricanes, along with Italian Fiat CR42 biplanes and the larger Fiat BR20 bomber . . . There is lots of detail to be seen of the various airframes and plenty of ideas for modellers who might want to try their hand at a diorama showing an aircraft recovery scene. I think I'd go so far as to say this is one of my favorites in the extensive Images of War series."—Military Modelling Online

Soldiers and Suffragettes Anna Sparham 2015-08-30 In 1903 a self-taught novice photographer, Christina Broom, turned to photography as a business venture to support her family; from this modest beginning she was to emerge as Britain's acknowledged pioneer woman press photographer.

Unconventionally for women photographers of the time she took her camera to the streets and recorded arresting and historically important images of Suffragettes, sporting events, royal occasions and World War I soldiers and developed a significant enterprise in picture postcards which she published from her home in Fulham, London, till her death in 1939. Despite her camera's presence at many significant historical events and her importance to press photography her achievements have, to date, been underappreciated; this, the first publication on her life and work redresses the neglect and also illuminates the vital role of her dedicated assistant and daughter, Winifred, without whom Broom's substantial contribution to photography might have been lost. The book showcases Broom's remarkable work celebrating her personal journey, approach and skill through many rich photographs, drawn from the Museum of London's fine collection of her plate glass negatives and prints which reflect her visual style and spectrum of subjects. Essays from four women who have engaged closely with her work for several years explore and contextualise her imagery and reveal the compelling story of the women behind the lens. Exhibition: Museum of London Docklands, London, UK (19.06-01.11.2015).

Bill Brandt Sarah Hermanson Meister 2013 Bill Brandt was the pre-eminent British photographer of the twentieth century and a founding father of photography's modernist tradition, whose half-century-long career defies neat categorization. This publication presents the photographer's entire oeuvre, with special emphasis on his investigation of English life in the 1930s and his innovative late nudes. The Museum of Modern Art has been exhibiting and collecting Brandt's photographs since the late 1940s, and recently has more than doubled its collection of vintage prints of his work, which form the core of this selection. An essay by Sarah Hermanson Meister sets his life and work in the context of twentieth century photographic history. Brandt's printing style changed dramatically over the course of his career, and this will be a secondary focus. With rich duotone illustrations that highlight the special characteristics of Brandt's prints, this volume will be an invaluable resource to students and scholars alike. Lee Ann Daffner contributes an illustrated glossary of Brandt's retouching techniques, enhancing the appreciation of Brandt's printing processes. The book also includes a generously illustrated appendix of Brandt's published photo-stories during the Second World War, which will clarify the trajectory of Brandt's career as never before.

It contains some 200 photographs of downed enemy aircraft, painstakingly colorized today, showing the rare spectacle of new color from the Battle of Britain period.

Distracted Focus James Wilson 2019-03-27 An evocative, timeless and emotional series of landscape photographs that simultaneously highlights the uniqueness and representative qualities held by an array of urban, pastoral and coastal British topographies. Michael Shea's photography provides a delicate blend of documentary and art, not only charting the beauty and textures of under-explored geographical terrains, but also chronicling through them a personal journey that investigates identity, history and loss... "Distracted Focus is perhaps the finest example of Michael Shea's delicate blending of documentary and art. This collection is formed of landscape photographs that have been taken around various parts of the United Kingdom, and that present us with the haunting, beautiful aspects of a post-millenarian, post-human world. In Distracted Focus, Michael shows how the persistent and perennial beauty of nature - scudding clouds, creeping branches, metronomic tides, crowns of trees coaxed by liberal breezes - can render the extinct technologies of mankind pathetic and also oddly anonymous. A telescope on the South Downs could just as easily be in New England or overlooking the Pacific on the Gold Coast of Australia; a quiet English road is transformed into an abandoned desert highway; and an empty Sussex branch line could easily lead to Poland or somewhere in the Balkans. Geopolitical boundaries are rendered futile in these landscapes in which the quarrelsome progenitors of such distinctions have been made absent." - James Wilson. AUTHOR: Michael Shea was born in Wandsworth and grew up in South London. He received a Master's degree in Fine Art, specialising in Photography, from the Norwich School of Art and Design. His passion for observing, interpreting and documenting his surroundings has taken him the length and breadth of the United Kingdom - from Sussex to Cumbria and from Norfolk to Scotland. Michael's work has been exhibited in group and solo shows across the country - at the Red Box Gallery in Newcastle, the Lighthouse Gallery in Wolverhampton, and, most recently, London's Camera Museum and ECAD Gallery in Peckham. Distracted Focus, for which Michael received an Arts Council grant, represents the culmination of his photographic work to date, and marks Michael's full emergence as one of the most exciting photographers working in Britain today. SELLING POINTS: * Searing black and white photography wrought with sensitivity and equanimity * First time Michael Shea's innovative landscapes have appeared in book form * Beautiful and luxurious, limited to a print run of just 250 copies, this book is expected to become a collector's item * Contextualising introduction by writer and poet James Wilson * Includes free limited edition print, numbered by the photographer 25 b/w images

Sussex from the Air Denny Rowland 2003 WHEN local photographer Denny Rowland went aloft with his camera to record towns, villages and familiar landmarks across Sussex, he created a unique archive of one of Britain's most beautiful counties. His PZL-104 Wilga single-prop aircraft can fly at extremely low speeds - down to 55mph - enabling the photographer to capture pin-sharp images of the ground below. Flying at 1,500ft over urban areas and down to 500ft over the countryside, Denny produced probably the finest-ever selection of aerial photographs of Sussex. Brighton and Hove, Worthing, Bognor, Chichester, Eastbourne, Crawley, Haywards Heath and the rest of the county are shown in colourful detail, from castles and stately homes to solitary lighthouses and the bustle of working ports. As Richard Taylor, picture editor of The Argus, has said, The quality of the images is truly outstanding. In Sussex from the Air, Denny Rowland's work is shown at its best and the book will be a long-lasting and unique souvenir of the county. It will delight all who live here and all who visit.

London's remarkable history, architecture, landmarks, streets, style, cool, swagger, and stalwart residents are pictured in hundreds of compelling photographs sourced from a wide array of archives around the world. A Victorian Visit to Brighton Andrew Gill 2015-07-17 In the late 19th century, Brighton was known as 'London-super-Mare'. Fast and luxurious rail services meant that wealthy businessmen could live by the sea and work in the Metropolis and Britain's expanding railway network enabled thousands of holiday makers from all parts of the Country to visit the resort and enjoy its unique attractions. Detailed guide books were available to help tourists make the most of their visit, with sections on its history, geology, weather, where to stay and places of interest in fact, just about everything they could want or need to know. This 40 page booklet combines text relating to Brighton from 'Black's Guide to Sussex', published in 1896, with photographs taken from postcards and 'magic lantern' projection slides, owned by the Keasbury-Gordon Photograph Archive. It is in three parts. The first comprises sixteen photographs taken between 1880 and 1920; the second, a history and general description of Sussex and the third, a detailed exploration of Brighton. The text for parts two and three is reproduced from the 1896 guide-book. The photographs and text complement each other and enable us to travel back in time to visit Britain's 'Queen of resorts'.

A Fighter Command Station at War Mark Hiller 2015-08-31 Situated close to the South Coast, on flat land to the north of Chichester in West Sussex, lies Goodwood Aerodrome. This pleasant rural airfield was once home to squadrons of Hurricanes, Spitfires and later Typhoons. RAF Westhampnett was at the forefront of the Battle of Britain as a satellite to the Sector (or controlling) Station of RAF Tangmere, part of 11 Group, which bore the brunt of the struggle for Britain's survival in 1940. It became the base of Wing Commander Douglas Bader until he was shot down over France, as Fighter Command took the war to the enemy with operational sweeps over Occupied Europe. Those operations included the infamous Channel Dash which saw the escape of the German warships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, and the Dieppe raid of 1942 which involved the largest aerial battle of the war up to that date. Westhampnett's squadrons also supported the D-Day landings and the subsequent Battle of Normandy. Packed with the largest collection of photographs of this airfield ever compiled, this illustrated publication provides a detailed history of the fighting as seen through the eyes of many of the pilots and ground crew. RAF Westhampnett brings to life those exciting but dangerous days of the Second World War through the words and photographs of those who were there.
