Professor Richard Douglas has a problem: he seems to have acquired a viral infection while exploring for plants on the Amazon and has brought it back home with him. It doesn't make him ill, but it has organized his microbiome and parts of his brain into a conscious and seductive female symbiont, who calls herself Carole and haunts his dreams. She says she wants to be his secret life partner and protector if he is willing to help her spread her infection around the world. In return, she promises to improve his health, revive his youth and enable him to pursue a lost love from his high school days. Unfortunately, that lost love is now a flamboyant novelist and a potentially dangerous part-time dominatrix with rather unusual ideas about relations between men and women. Would he dare to meet her again? If all goes well, she is to be his main human co-conspirator in Carole's scheme for domestication of the human race into "trans-humans". Should he trust Carole or is she spinning a veil of illusion around his life just to allow symbionts to conquer all of humanity? What does she really want?

Until the night we break all the magical rules and the kiss that changes...everything. Until the moment I realize Mother's the one who's been spinning lies. Now I must choose—between love and duty. The Lonely Witch of Brett Manor Ct. - Shaamim Ahmed 2023-03-07

The Lonely Witch of Brett Manor Ct. Once upon a time, there was a witch who lived alone in a spooky old house on a street called Brett Manor Ct. She had lived there for as long as anyone could remember, and the neighbors whispered that she was a witch who cast spells and brewed potions in her cauldron. The witch was very lonely, and she wished for someone to talk to and share her life with. One day, a little 5-year-old girl named Farzin was walking by and saw the witch's garden. She was curious and walked towards the house, but as she was getting closer, she saw the witch looking out from her window, and she became scared. The witch saw the girl and realized that she had been scaring the children in the neighborhood with her spooky appearance. She felt ashamed and decided to change her ways. She called out to the girl and invited her to come inside and see her garden. Farzin was hesitant at first, but she was also curious about the witch's garden. She went inside, and the witch showed her all of the beautiful flowers and plants she had grown. The girl was fascinated and asked the witch to teach her how to plant flowers. The witch was happy to have someone to teach and to spend time with. She showed Farzin how to plant flowers and even let her help with some of her potions. The girl was excited and would come over every day to learn more from the witch. As the witch and Farzin became friends, the witch started to feel less lonely. She realized that she didn't need people to be happy - she just needed to find companionship in the creatures around her, including this little girl. One day, Farzin invited the witch to her birthday party, and the witch was hesitant at first. She had never been to a party before and didn't know how to act around children. But Farzin assured her that everyone would love to meet her. At the party, the witch was nervous, but everyone was surprised to see how kind-hearted she was. They had never seen her like that before. Farzin and her friends showed the witch how to play games, and they all had a lot of fun together. From that day on, the witch had a new group of friends - Farzin, her friends, the little bird, and the mischievous cat - who kept her company and made her life a little less lonely. And the neighbors started to see that the witch wasn't so scary after all - she was just a kind-hearted soul who loved her garden and her friends.
